

Disclaimer

The use of the EurAqua website (hereinafter called: “Website”) is subject to the conditions set out below. By visiting and using the Website you declare that you are acquainted with these conditions and agree to them. The Websites have been composed on behalf of EurAqua, a network of European Freshwater Institutes.

The Website has been set up with the greatest possible care. The Website is, however, intended for informative purposes only. No rights may be derived from the information on the Website and the use of the Website is at your own expense and risk. EurAqua does not guarantee that the Website is free of viruses and work without errors and/or interruptions. EurAqua may amend the contents of the Website, including the provisions of these conditions at any time.

Furthermore, the Website may contain links to websites of third parties. These links are selected with all possible care. However, EurAqua cannot guarantee the contents and the functioning of the websites of third parties.

Unless stated differently, all intellectual property rights in connection with the Website, including the software, texts, images and sounds (hereinafter jointly “Information”), are vested exclusively in EurAqua or its network partners. This means among other things that it is not permitted, without the prior, written permission of EurAqua to make public, reproduce and/or modify the Information of the Website. It is also not permitted to use the Information for text- and data- mining and machine learning. However, use of the Information is permitted for personal, non-commercial use and to the extent permitted under mandatory law.

The Website may only be used for legitimate purposes, in a manner that cannot in any way (i) harm EurAqua and its partners or (ii) infringe the rights and the enjoyment of use of third parties.

EurAqua and its partners accept no liability – for any reason whatsoever – for any form of damage (including property damage, financial loss as a result of material damage and pure financial loss) that follows in any way from the operation of and/or the use of (information on) the Website.

Dutch law applies to the Website and also to these conditions.